Career Profile & Highlights:

Emma is an experienced Senior Project Manager with a proven track record of delivering large scale projects above customers' expectation, managing up to six projects simultaneously with an accumulated budget of over $500,000. In early 2016, Emma managed the development and launch of online professional development course 'Respectful Relationships education program', a major initiative of the Queensland Government providing resources to 68,000 teachers across Queensland Schools. This program is part of a broader multi-departmental commitment to ending domestic and family violence. Successfully staying within budget and liaising with the client throughout the process, Emma was responsible for developing contractual variations to capture new agreements. Emma successfully delivered of all development milestones by working together with the knowledge experts within a six week turnaround and $27,000 under budget.

Outside of her career, Emma is an active volunteer and fundraiser for several community-based organisations that assist in the area of child safety, such Backpacks for Aussie Kids and the Pyjama foundation. Since 2011 Emma has been involved in assisting these charities achieve better outcomes for children in the foster care system. Additionally Emma participates in an annual event which raises funding and awareness for abused women and children shelters throughout the world, with the Brisbane Team supporting DV Connect. Emma is passionate about supporting community, and hopes to position herself in areas that she can influence, give back to community and make a positive difference.

Emma's leadership style is active, with a can-do attitude, and she is driven to reach goals. She enjoys having variety roles and taking on new challenges and opportunities, even if it means changing direction quickly. She excels in stakeholder management, managing people to achieve change and is a clear and articulate operator.

As an aspiring female leader, Emma would like to raise her profile and experience in areas where she feels she can achieve the most influence. She is motivated and always self nominates for high-profile assignments that allow her to maximize and showcase her skills and achieve the desired outcomes. Emma develops strong connections with people and is considerate of all views before making decisions.

Emma is seeking to commence her board career in the not-for-profit sector and would be of great value to any board.
